

Sermon Review
April 28, 2024
“When Jesus Comes to Your Home”

Luke 19:1-10

Sooner or later, everyone will be confronted with the decision to accept or reject the gospel, the story of Jesus Christ. The issues of life and our curiosity will make us all inquire and wonder, is there really someone somewhere that can do the marvelous miracles of life and in particular perform the miracles in my life that I so desperately need to survive. Perhaps these were the questions in the mind of Zaccheus a tax collector who had heard about Jesus. With Jesus passing through Jericho, Zaccheus decided to find Jesus and just see what he could see. His short stature prevented him from getting close to Him, so he climbed up a tree. Sure, enough he got a firsthand look at Jesus and in return Jesus got a firsthand look at him. We all must remember any contact with Christ will always leave us in a completely different position than we were in prior to our meeting. Upon seeing Zaccheus Jesus inform him of His desire and intention to come to his house. Was Zaccheus ready for a visitor to his home, what could he do to prepare for such a guest Jesus meets us just as we are? It truly is to our benefit that we surrender our lives to Him and let Him lead and guide us each and every day of our lives. Yes, He can and does perform miraculous miracles externally and internally, most significantly in the hearts, souls, and mind of men and women. The houses that we live in made of tangible construction material are significantly less valued than the materials that God has made us. The house that God has made in us is the one that we should be most concerned about. For He stands at the door of our lives and knocks, we all ought to open the door and let Him in. What will you do when Jesus comes to your home?

Be Blessed.

Rev. Dr. Keith L. Reynolds, Pastor